

WHAT IS DATABASE??

A database in full stack development is a system used to store, organize, and manage application data so that the backend can save, retrieve, update, and delete information whenever needed.

Why Database is Needed

- To store application data safely
- To retrieve data quickly whenever required
- To update data without losing previous information
- To manage large amounts of data efficiently

